ADDED MARGIN IS DEPLORED

Former Broker Points Out Disadvantages, Holland Tells.

A man who has had successful ex perience in the general commission stock business as that was carried on from 1860 until he retired in 1904 and this morning that his experience of thirty-five years in that business had thirty-five years in that business had demonstrated that out of 500 accounts, using that figure as an average, from 75 per cent to 80 per cent of fhem rarely had over 10 per cent margin kept good. Of course these accounts required constant watching in order to make them good. How can it pe possible, then, "on the drop of the hat," to use this man's words, to expect that those who are now accustomed to keep about 10 per cent margin, or a little more, maybe, will be able to respond to a call for 30 per pent margin?

This retired broker, who in his day stood with the most honorable and stood with the most honorable and conscientious of all of those who were engaged in this vocation, and who transacted much business for some of those who dealt heavily in securities. confesses that he is concerned over the action of the so-called Bankers Money Committee in Insisting that Money Committee in insisting that hereafter the banks require margins of at least 30 per cent. He is not alone in the apprehension that the ultimate results may be not satisfactory. From many part of the country come reports that indicate that a feeling does prevail that this action of the so-called Bankers Money Committee is a revelation of tremendous power, suddenly assumed, with almost unlimited authority to control the natural ebb and flow of business. There also is, if not a susbusiness. There also is, if not a sus-picion, at least a suggestion or thought, in other parts of the coun-try that the action of the Bankers' committee may lead to the charge that the committee was interested with capitalists in securing all the cheap securities during the present temporary stringency of the money ers' Committee, as well as many or the other war committees, is equipped with a personnel which is beyond re-proach. The members are patriotic, loyal and realous in thought and action. Yet this committee has assumed a power which in former days, not so long ago, might have justified the country in asserting that the Wall street money power is something to be reckeded with.

The Former Money Power. At the time when the country was vigorously opposing centrall-zation of power, symbolizing it by the word trusts, perhaps the most vigorous of the attacks upon this wer was against the so-called Wall street money trust. When the Federal Reserve Banking system was adopted it was commonly un-derstood that it would serve to decentralize money power and to ex-tend over the whole country credit resources which were formerly pre-sumed to be concentrated in or near Wall street. however, of a sudden through the co-operation of fifty or sixty banks of New York there is an exercise of money power which must be confessed is seriously neering thinking men. No one subts the sincerity of the motives those who have put these restrictions upon the course of the strictions upon the course of the securities market. They are based upon the belief that the necessities of the government compel the conservation of credit and require the suppression of a tendency to deal heavily and in a speculative manner in securities.

But while the motive is approved, nevertheless there clearly stands out nevertheless there clearly stands out the fact that a group of bankers, who as a whole represent the bank-ing life of New York City, is able so to concentrate power as to place severe restrictions upon what veteran operator calls the "natural ebb and flow of business." The government through its resentative, Fred I. Kent, who resentative, Fred I. Kent, who is clothed with authority, is able to restrict the sending of American money abroad with intent to invest it in securities. But that is done as a covernmental function. The restriction does not stood The restriction does not stand in the way of the purchase in the United States of securities issued by foreign governments and mar-

Power and Responsibility. The Bankers' Money Committee, which has concentrated power into its hands, is without any responsibility excepting that of a moral kind. The control of money by an organized committee having very kind. great cower over the buying and selling of stocks and bonds may be carried so far as to cause great injustice to persons of means and influence. For h tinued pressure on the market thus exerted a large portion of the stocks and bonds known as investment securities will naturally drop into the open basket of the capitalists and others who have the money to uti-lize in transactions of this kind, while the man of moderate means, who is a part of the great majority. will have had no chance in this hour of inflation. That is another point brought up by some of those who are wonder-ing whether the keeping down of the securities artificially in the face of prospects that would otherwise send them up may not involve dansend them up may not involve dua-gerous and embarrassing proceed-ings. it may serve for a time to dam up a very strong force, but that force will inevitably soons, or iater make itself felt. There is one fidence by those who are studyles this sudden and unusual situates and that is that government forms and that is that government forms will be subscribed for by all patriotic citizens, no matter how large the offer may be, regardless of the offer may be. fluctuating money market
